Villa's Troops Leave Ojinaga.

Ojinaga, the Mexican town captured by Villa last week, is now almost deserted by his forces, who have left to join Villa in the field. Military and Federal officers are examining all who pass out of Presidio, Tex., which is opposite Ojinaga, in search of Mexican politicians aligned with the Villistas. The Mexican Government requests of the United States the 500 Mexican Federal soldiers who are interned at Marfa.

Arresting Suspected Germans.

The intelligence bureaus of the army and navy have charge of arresting suspected Germans, mainly in sea coast and lake port cities. They are acting under authority of President Wilson's new proclamation, forbidding alien enemies within 100 yards of docks, requiring their registration and imposing other restrictions on their movements. Only a small percentage of the half million unnaturalized Germans will be arrested. A few Germans have left Washington, as it is within a barred zone.

Kansas to Be Cleared of I. W. W.

The arrest of fifty I. W. W. workers in the oil fields of Butler County, Kansas, by Government officials marks the initial step in the round-up of 3,000 members of the organization in that state. Literature was confiscated and will be investigated for evidence to convict the men on Federal charges.

Shipments to Russia Stopped.

The United States will not ship supplies to Russia until the situation in that country clears. The cessation is only temporary, but if the Bolsheviks gain control and pursue their program calling for a peace with Germany, the embargo will be permanent so keep the embargo tight. The end. A protracted civil war would allow Provisional Russian Government has been given credit amounting to $325,000,000, of which $191,000,000 has been advanced.

MACHINERY SIMPLIFIES
CAFETERIA'S BIG TASK

At 10:30 o'clock every morning things are moving rapidly in the kitchen of the University cafeteria. Five hundred persons will soon begin pouring in for the noon meal, and they want their dinner ready. Three great ranges, standing side by side, form the main cooking battery with a huge bake oven close to be used in emergency. Along one wall is a row of copper kettles heated by steam and in them boil various things—soup, for one thing, and it boils up nearly to the top. In the corner, between the ranges and copper boilers, is a large iron box connected with the steam pipes. In this they bake brown bread in closed pans.

Today, they are cooking potatoes in open pans for mashing, close by stands the machine for mashing—a queer thing that is turned on a crank and has blades like those on the propeller of a motor boat. Simply drop your potatoes in and turn the crank, and the potatoes are whipped and churned lumpless.

In another room, the preparation room, is a machine for peeling potatoes. The potatoes are put in, jets of water play on them and the inside revolves rapidly. On this inside section are numerous raised places that literally peel the hide off the potatoes. The skin or skin is washed away by the water, and the potatoes when peeled are taken out and gone over by hand to remove all eyes and spots.

Soon after 12 o'clock, the dishes are being rapidly washed. Many-decked busses on wheels are used to the trays with dishes to the elevator. There they are lowered to the basement and wheeled to the "scrappers," who throw the scraps into a tub and sort the dishes. The trays are washed by a separate machine and the glasses are done by hand. The dishes are placed irregularly in a wire basket, hoisted and put into a vat where boiling water is forced over them by a motor, into a rinsing vat; then they are hoisted and slid to four "wipers," who wipe, sort and place them in trays. They are then ready to be used again. The trays are placed edgewise in a vat, the water is turned on and they are rocked back and forth rapidly. They are then taken out and dried. The knives, forks and spoons are washed in the same machine and dried by hand.

Something over $1,000 is spent every week for food for the cafeteria. Between 1,300 and 1,500 meals are eaten there every day. The noon meal is the best patronized, then follows supper, and the last is breakfast. Sunday night brings large crowds from fraternities and sororities and breakfast on Sunday morning is the lightest of all. The average cost of a meal is 16½ cents. The total expenditures amount to $60,000 in a year, of which $10,000 goes to pay employees. Forty-two are on the payroll, and of these eight are making their way entirely through school.

An average of 5 bushels of potatoes is used daily, 44 gallons of whole milk, 4 gallons of 18 per cent cream, 5 to 10 per cent, 2 of 30 per cent; 8 gallons of skim milk, 8 of butter-milk and 5 of ice cream. Nearly 100 pounds of meat is used every day except on Tuesday (meatless day), and on Sunday 85 pounds of chicken. Bread is bought, but all other things are prepared in the cafeteria kitchen. In the basement are two storage rooms, one for keeping things that are not perishable and the other, with a temperature near freezing, for fruits, meats, milk, butter and vegetables. There are divisions in the latter, for some things cannot stand the very low temperature that other things must have.

Summer brings a thriving business. Many of the boarding houses close and the number and cost of meals rise. The "teachers" live better, is the explanation given for the rise in cost of the average meal. The first week of school every year shows a great demand for meat. Within a month this has fallen a third or half.

The cafeteria is run on a cost plan. It has a manager, a foreman, an efficiency expert and a corps of employees of various kinds. Things are bought wholesale. The meat comes through the University the same as it does for the hospital and Read Hall.

Teachers wanted to fill emergency vacancies in all departments. Have calls for teachers daily. Only 3½ per cent commission. Teachers' Employment Bureau, 208-209 C. R. S. Bank Bldg., Cedar Rapids, Iowa. 12-1f

Ricketts Wins Billiard Match.

W. D. Ricketts won the first half of the 1,000-ball pocket billiard match yesterday from Orville Nelson of Kansas City by a score of 500 to 346. Numerous runs of over twenty points were made by both experts. The best were 26-24-38 by Nelson and 49-39-32 by Ricketts. The last half of the contest will be played in Kansas City tomorrow and Friday. Mr. Ricketts is trying to form a three-cushion league in which St. Louis, St. Joseph, Joplin, Sedalia, Des Moines and Columbia will be included.
